Dragon's Den Instructions

In Dragon's Den you play as an adventurer deep in the lair of a sleepy dragon. In order to survive and beat the game you must dodge the attacks of the dragon and his horde of monsters until he is too tired to continue. This occurs when the score reaches 100 as he has exhausted his monsters and fireballs. As the player you are able to dodge these attacks using the up, down, left, and right arrows to move around the dragon and his monster's attacks. The monsters will attack in a random order with one of the monsters rushing downwards and if they make contact with the player, the player loses. As the game goes on, the delay between the time it takes for another monster to be sent is decreased, this means that as the game progresses the difficulty will increase with more and more monsters attacking at once. When a monster's attack is dodged and it makes contact with the bottom of the world, the player's score will increase by 1. The dragon will travel across the top of the world in a sweeping horizontal pattern and will randomly shoot fireballs downwards. These fireballs travel faster than the monsters and have a larger area of contact, making them harder to dodge. Dodging these fireballs will award the player with 2 points added to their score. Once the score reaches 100 the game will end and the player will have won, as the dragon has fallen back asleep.
